Course Description

This course follows the complex trajectories linking interreligious and intercultural narratives in Germany today. How does the culture of memory in Germany, with its Christian frame and Jewish focus converge and diverge with more recent narratives of migration that have made Islam a visible presence in Germany? This is the main question this course seeks to address. Students will interrogate this topic through dedicated lectures, workshops, and site visits to museums and other venues.

The focus is on quality rather than quantity. The six readings are to be read carefully and discussion questions are to be prepared as assigned in advance of the class in question. (Dates and details will be announced once the schedule is set). The sites will be explored intensively with specific assignments and methods (conversation walk, field diary, participant observation).

This course can stand alone well, but can also be combined with the course offered in Summer Session 1: Jewish Narratives in Germany: Exploring Memory Past and Present

Course Objective & Learning Outcomes

By the end of the course, students will be able to:

Have knowledge of the post-war migration trajectories in Germany and specifically explore how they relate to the dominant memorial culture in Germany.

Interrogate issues of interreligious and intercultural significance such as, belonging, integration, and race and racism, especially anti-Semitism and Islamophobia both historically and in their contemporary forms.

Critically analyze the role of the Christian Churches, Jewish initiatives, and discourses on Islam in this evolving situation.

Use anthropological field methods to explore and then critically analyze the sites and topics in question. The methods include, the conversation walk, reflective participant observation and field diary use.

The presentation should be ca. 1 hour in total length. This includes presentation, discussion and feedback.

Political and historical guided tours:

- Federal Chancellery (Bundeskanzleramt): It's the central coordination point for the entire government policy. The office is in constant contact to departments and other authorities.
- German Parliament (Bundestag): As the highest organ of the legislative in Germany it's elected by the German people. In practice Germany is governed by a bicameral legislature, of which the Bundestag serves as the lower house and the Bundesrat equals the upper house.
- House of Representatives (Abgeordnetenhaus): It's the state parliament (Landtag) of Berlin and located in the center of the reunified city. Together with the Martin Gropius Bau, the Topography of Terror and the Bundesrat, it presents an arresting contrast to the flair of the new Potsdamer Platz.

The records are preserved, processed and made available for academic research.

Cultural guided tours:

- Kreuzberg Tour: Kreuzberg has emerged from its history as one of the poorest quarters in Berlin in the late 1970s to a cultural center of today's Berlin. A unique area and one of the hippest neighbourhoods in Berlin with many bars, pubs and clubs.
 - Berlins Museum Island (Museumsinsel): was awarded UNESCO World Heritage Status in 1999 and is an ensemble of five museums: Old Museum, New Museum, Old National Gallery, Pergamon Museum and Bode Museum.
 - Berliner Dom: Berlin's largest and most important Protestant church is located on the Museum Island.

Your Instructor

Dr. Victoria Bishop Kendzia's teaching method, although anthropologically inflected, is interdisciplinary in nature and is, therefore, not limited to the social sciences. It appeals to students from a wide variety of academic backgrounds from history to art, through to geography, theology, and politics. The focus of her work is on the urban landscape, especially, but not only, museums and memorials in and around Berlin. In this context, locations are approached as field sites that can be read, explored, and critically analyzed as dynamic sites that project and reframe key aspects of history and culture. The urban laboratory that is Berlin is particularly well-suited to this endeavor, given the historical and cultural upheavals it has witnessed during the 20th century.

She defended her dissertation entitled: The Jewish Museum Berlin: Visitor Experience in the Context of Political Education in 2013 at the Institute for European Ethnology, Humboldt University Berlin under the supervision of Prof. Wolfgang Kaschuba and Prof. Sharon Macdonald. Her doctoral work was based on ethnography of young Berlin-based high school students in and around the Jewish Museum Berlin. She has a background in Museum Studies, having completed her master's degree in this field from the University of Toronto, Canada in 2001 and her Bachelor of Arts Honours at the same university in 1999. She has been publishing scholarly articles in her field since 2009 and teaching at the university level since 2008.
