COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course will give an overview of how global governance works in a world of hyper-connectedness, diluted power, fragmented organizational structures, intensifying great power competition, and exceeded planetary boundaries. The focus will be on the actors, institutions and ideas of world politics today – from the UN family and Agenda 2030 to Great Powers to thematic alliances such as the Paris Climate Accords.

Some hope Germany will take on the mantle of “leader of the free world”. While it is true that Germany has entered a phase of “new responsibility” in its foreign policy and remains strongly committed to the rules-based international order and global sustainability, it is becoming more and more difficult for such middle powers to project its influence into the world. The course will take this German perspective as a starting point to try to understand the state of global governance more broadly. Here, emphasis will be put on climate diplomacy and the securitization of multilateralism as these are important features of German foreign relations.

Who are the indispensable nations? Who are the spoilers? What kind of cooperation is needed to save the planet? Whose Global Order is it?

We will look at multilateral and unilateral behavior of states as well as at recent efforts to introduce sustainability into global governance. We will also identify non-Western visions of global governance. Finally, the course will revolve around the question of how to make the global liberal institutionalist order (and ultimately, our world) more resilient in the face of new authoritarian challenges – after all, this is what Germany and other countries like it are (still) striving to do.

COURSE OBJECTIVES AND LEARNING OUTCOMES

By the end of the course, students will be able to:

- understand core concepts of global governance and power in International Relations
- enrich them with a specifically German worldview of international cooperation
- apply these concepts to the institutions and organizations of our present global order
- analyze foreign policy ideas and behavior of pivotal states in world politics
- come up with concrete policy recommendations for their own countries

ASSIGNMENT INFO

In order to gain 6 ECTS, all students are required to attend class regularly, read all assigned texts, hold a brief presentation (20 min) and most importantly: to participate actively in classroom discussions. The topic of the presentations will be decided during the first session. In addition, BA students ought to hand in an academic essay of at least 2.000 words that answers a given policy question as follow-up work to the course. By contrast, MA students should define their own research question to be answered in an academic essay of at least 2.000 words.

The final grade will be composed by evaluating the in-class presentation (30%) and the essay (40%). Active participation during class discussions will be taken into account as well (30%). A minimum of 80% class attendance is required. Full ECTS points will only be awarded if all of the mentioned components are fulfilled.
